

Names Of Taft, Warren, Eisenhower Placed In Nomination For President At Convention

River Crests; Families Flee Lowland Homes

The rain-gorged Delaware River topped flood stage by more than 8 feet last night at the Delaware Bridge.

River-edge and island dwellers went scototing for higher ground as the water climbed relentlessly up the banks.

The peak at Milford Bridge was reached at 3 p.m., when the river stood 15.8 feet above normal level. Bridge police said there was no damage in the Milford area, however.

Although the crest passed Milford at 3 p.m., the river rose at Delaware and Portland Bridges near the Water Gap for another eight hours, then crested.

As the water began to percolate up the banks in the Shawnee area, some 30 families on Miniskin Island started worrying about their summer cottages.

The long wooden bridge connecting the island with the Shawnee Country club mainland began slapping the raising tide late in the afternoon.

The lower half of the golf course was flooded with a water hazard that put an end to play.

Shortly after 8 p.m. the island end of the bridge gave way. The bridge, held together by cables, swung downstream, tugging at its mainland anchor. The anchor held.

Throughout the afternoon Kathryn Tomlin, one of the island dwellers, helped to "rescue" boats moving the mooring chains farther up as the water climbed.

Residents on the island began buttoning up, preparing to take off.

Those on the higher points on the island were given cats, dogs, canaries to keep for the residents from down on the "point."

Those with children worried about the "kids falling in." The current, while not violent, was extremely rapid.

Frank Merworth, with his wife and grandson in his cottage, was one of those on higher ground. At 6 p.m. he said some of the families down on the point were leaving.

They departed in motorboats and row boats to seek accommodations for the night in Stroudsburg and elsewhere.

Before they left, point residents roped their porch furniture together, secured their cottages to trees and anchors with heavy chain and cable.

The water in that section rose fast during the afternoon.

The report from the Delaware Bridge showed:

Five feet over normal at 2 p.m.; 10.5 over normal at 5 p.m.; 11.5 at 6 p.m.; 12.5 at 7 p.m.; 13 feet at 8 p.m.; 14.2 at 11 p.m.

The 14 foot mark was about eight feet over flood stage, according to bridge police.

About 8 p.m. Mrs. Renie Gable said Ellenberger's landing was close to being submerged—but hadn't gone under water yet.

At 9 p.m. Art Singer, another cottage owner on the island, said the water had crept to the top of the banks, and another three feet would put the flood inside the cottages in the point.

The tides had crawled almost to the Shawnee Inn itself but was not then touching the building, Singer said.

Manville Vows To Settle Down

New Rochelle, N. Y. (AP) — Millionaire Tommy Manville was married yesterday for the ninth time. "I want to settle down," he said. "This one'll have to stick—there won't be any more."

His bride was Anita Frances Roddy-Eden, 29, willowy blonde dancer and song writer.

The last wife of the asbestos heir was the late Georgina Campbell Manville, killed in an automobile accident two months ago. They were separated at the time.

Swiftwater, Henryville Areas Hit By High Water

Torrential rains that drenched the area for some 40 hours reaching a climax early yesterday morning caused thousands of dollars in damage to resorts, businesses and homes in Monroe and Pike Counties as it swelled the Delaware River and many streams in the Poconos to over-flowing at numerous points.

Among those hit hardest by the raging waters were Swiftwater Laboratories and a section of Henryville House property.

Cascading water poured rapidly into an animal testing building of the Swiftwater Labs drowning several hundred mice and guinea pigs caught there for experimental purposes. Water rose about three and a half feet in the structure.

The muddy waters climbed the Lighthouse Bar and Grill directly adjoining the mountainside trapping the animals in their pens. In another building where material was stored the wash from the hills drenched stock but much of the equipment was removed before serious damage occurred. The rushing water reached its height about 10:30 p.m. Wednesday.

At Henryville House a heavily constructed concrete dam collapsed about midnight and sent onrushing Paradise Creek on an entirely different course. A 30-foot section of the dam was ripped to shreds allowing water to rush through, flooding a wide area and uprooting trees.

The dam, believed built about 50 years ago to afford a boating area for the resort center, was reinforced after a flood in 1946. (Continued on page 7)

Republicans Adopt Platform

By Ovid A. Martin
Convention Hall, Chicago (AP) — The Republican National Convention yesterday adopted a 1952 platform bristling with denunciation of the Truman administration—and in its words—charting a road for free men to "march into a new day."

A 6,000-word campaign document—which will become the textbook for GOP campaign orators in the months ahead—accused the Democratic administration with losing the peace abroad and with trying to set up a socialistic state at home.

An anticipated battle over the platform stand on the touchy issue of civil rights failed to develop. Northern proponents of compulsory federal action to end racial discrimination in employment of workers interpreted a "middle-of-the-road" plank as favoring their position.

It was this group that had threatened to demand that the civil rights stand be rewritten from the convention floor. But they gave up without a fight.

Adoption of the platform came on a unanimous voice vote after Sen. Eugene D. Millikin of Colorado, chairman of the convention Resolutions Committee, had read the lengthy document to the delegates.

The foreign policy plank was approved by both Taft and his chief rival for the presidential nomination, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, before the Resolutions Committee laid it before the convention.

In bitter tones of denunciation, the platform charged that the party in power has been fostering "a strife for political purposes" hampering domestic progress "unnecessary and crushing taxation."

It said freedom and liberty at home had been lost, and promised to re-establish them. Such an achievement, it declared, would revive "contagious, liberating influences" that inevitably would set up stresses and strains behind the Iron Curtain and make Communist rulers impotent to carry out their goal of world domination.

Perhaps one of the platform's hardest punches dealt with charges of corruption in high places. The document asserted that the administration's "sordid record of corruption has shocked and sickened the American people."

"Fraud, bribery, graft, favoritism and influence-peddling have come to light," it said. "Immoral and unethical behavior has been found to exist among some who were entrusted with high policy-making positions."

The Democratic administration was accused of trying to wreck the nation's traditional free enterprise system.

On the foreign policy issue, the platform declared that the party in power had "squandered" the nation's power and prestige and had in fact invited the Soviet Union to enslave millions of people.

It also declared the Korean War could have been averted.

The platform promises that if the GOP is put in power, it will seek and win a "just and honorable" peace by following collective security measures that fit a pattern of "enlightened self-interest."

Looking to the campaign ahead in which the Democrats are expected to make prosperity an issue, the platform said the appearance that times are good is created by "war expenditures, waste and extravagance, planned emergencies and war crises."

A plank on national defense charged that the administration has failed to prepare the nation properly for a possible Russian attack.

It put especial emphasis on expansion of air power, but also promised to keep a strong sea and land force ready.

Also on the domestic front, the platform promised to cut government spending, balance the federal budget and to reduce taxes. It also promised to remove "injurious" wage and price controls.

It endorsed the Taft-Hartley labor act—a law which President Truman has denounced—but promised to make such amendments in the law as time might show to be necessary and which would further protect the rights of labor, management and the public.

Other planks made the following charges and promises:

Communism—Truman administration "appeasement" of communism at home and abroad has permitted Reds and fellow travelers to serve in key agencies. The result has been a "needless sacrifice" of American lives and the loss of the atomic bomb secret to the Russians. The GOP would appoint only persons of unquestioned loyalty to federal posts.

Agriculture—this plank accused the Truman administration of attempting to destroy farmers' freedom through use of "socialistic" farm-program schemes. It promised to work for "full parity" prices for farmers at the market place. Subsidies would be ruled out.

Labor—it condemned government seizure of plants and industries to force settlement of labor management disputes.

Veterans—promised to extend present government benefits to veterans of the Korean War and to adjust the benefits to meet changes in the cost of living.

Social Security—charged that Truman administration "inflation" has cut value of benefits to aged and others.

Health—declared that proper medical care of the nation cannot be maintained if "subject to federal bureaucratic dictation." Opposed federal compulsory health insurance advocated by Truman.

Government reorganization pledged a thorough reorganization of the federal government in line with recommendations of a commission headed by former President Herbert Hoover.

Statehood—favored immediate statehood for Hawaii, statehood for Alaska under an "equitable" enabling act, and eventual statehood for Puerto Rico.

Presidential Nominee To Select Veep

By Jack Bell

Chicago (AP) — The Republican vice presidential nomination race—if it can be called that—was wide open last night.

In practical fact, the No. 2 spot on the ticket will be filled at the direction of the presidential nominee.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, leading rivals for the top spot, made it clear through their supporters that they haven't even begun to get down to brass tacks on that secondary problem.

Sen. Richard Nixon of the important California delegation was being discussed by some Eisenhower supporters as a possible choice. Nixon has been regarded as pro-Eisenhower, although he is going down the line for Gov. Earl Warren of California as long as Warren has a chance.

Before the Eisenhower camp could approach Nixon, however, it seemed likely that Warren himself might be offered the second place spot. He has said he wouldn't take it, but he said the same thing in 1948 and then changed his mind. Sen. William Knowland of California might give the Eisenhower slate a friendly link with the GOP elements behind Taft—if Knowland could be induced to take the second place spot. Knowland has worked hard here to keep peace between the Eisenhower and Taft factions.

Sen. H. Alexander Smith of New Jersey, an Eisenhower supporter, suggested in a statement that the loss in the Taft-Eisenhower contest take No. 2 place on the ticket. But neither camp seemed to be giving this any consideration.

Eisenhower's backers now believe they can win the nomination without having to make any sort of deal on the vice presidency. In the past, that plum often has gone to the man able to swing an important bloc of votes to the winner at the right time.

Because of that situation, there seemed little likelihood that the Eisenhower people would turn to an avowed backer like Gov. Theodore McKeldin of Maryland.

Given a free choice, Eisenhower's camp would like to have a young man from the West who remains friendly to Taft and could help keep the Taft wing of the party in line in November.

Knowland is the most logical choice on that basis.

Several Easterners, including Sens. Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. and Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, and Govs. John Lodge of Connecticut and Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey, have been mentioned as possibilities.

So far as the Taft camp is concerned, the vice presidential nomination is just as wide open as it is in the Eisenhower group.

Thompson Bradshaw of Beaver Falls, told a reporter he is not yet committed to Taft although he has voted with the Taft forces in the two biggest convention tests.

He said that since he and Andrew L. Bingham, of New Brighton, had campaigned together and voted together thus far it might be reasonable to suppose that they will continue to do so.

Chicago (AP) — Mason Owlett, prominent supporter of Sen. Robert A. Taft, said last night he expects the Republican convention to deadlock today, when presidential balloting begins.

"After that anything can happen," the Republican National Committeeman from Pennsylvania told a reporter. "I would not rule out any possibility."

Long Demonstrations Put Off Voting Until Today

By Douglas B. Cornell

Convention Hall, Chicago (AP) — The GOP put in nomination for the presidency last night the names of the men who have split into bitterly warring factions—Sen. Robert A. Taft and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Gov. Earl Warren of California was nominated, too, at a Republican National Convention that rolled into today's early morning hours.

Daily Record Scores Beat In GOP Coverage

The Daily Record scored another news beat on all opposition papers yesterday when it gave its readers exclusive accounts of two major developments at the Republican National Convention in Chicago.

The Record was the only newspaper circulated in Monroe County that carried the convention's decision to seat 33 Texas delegates considered favorable to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and five pledged to Sen. Robert A. Taft. This action reversed the Credentials Committee's recommendations that the delegation be split 22 to 16 in Taft's favor, and was considered by many political observers as the turning point of the convention.

The second important news "scoop" concerned Gov. John S. Fine's announcement that a caucus of the Pennsylvania delegation showed 51 favorable to General Eisenhower, 16 to Taft and three to Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

More State Delegates May Vote For Ike

By Charles Welsh

Chicago, (AP) — With 51 votes lined up for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Pennsylvania delegates talked yesterday of swinging even more to him when the Republican convention gets around to its first roll call for a presidential nominee.

That would mean taking some of the 16 votes cast for Sen. Robert A. Taft and three for Gen. Douglas MacArthur in yesterday's early morning caucus after Gov. John S. Fine came out for Eisenhower.

Two members of Fine's cabinet told a reporter they are confident the convention roll call will show at least two and quite possibly four or more additional Eisenhower votes.

However, Samuel S. Lewis of York, secretary of forests and waters, and Atty. Gen. Robert Woodside, of Harrisburg, declined to say what delegates they believe will switch.

Thompson Bradshaw of Beaver Falls, told a reporter he is not yet committed to Taft although he has voted with the Taft forces in the two biggest convention tests.

He said that since he and Andrew L. Bingham, of New Brighton, had campaigned together and voted together thus far it might be reasonable to suppose that they will continue to do so.

Chicago (AP) — Mason Owlett, prominent supporter of Sen. Robert A. Taft, said last night he expects the Republican convention to deadlock today, when presidential balloting begins.

"After that anything can happen," the Republican National Committeeman from Pennsylvania told a reporter. "I would not rule out any possibility."

Joint Board Elects Rogers As President

Brodheadsville — Thomas Rogers, of Hamilton Township, was elected president of the newly created joint school board of five West End townships at an organization meeting held in the Chestnut Hill High School last night.

Named to serve with Rogers were the following: Newton Davenport, Chestnut Hill, first vice president; LeRoy Hinton, Polk, second vice president; Mrs. Bertha Young, Hamilton, secretary; Clayton Snyder, Ross, treasurer; John C. Mills, Chestnut Hill, supervising principal, and Harry Young, Polk, assistant supervising principal in charge of elementary schools.

The joint agreement was signed in final form by the full boards of the five townships—Eldred, Ross, Polk, Chestnut Hill and Hamilton.

Williams and Williams, Stroudsburg law firm, was appointed board solicitor.

John C. Little, county superintendent of schools, and his assistant, Walter Sebring, attended the meeting and assisted the board in its deliberations.

Largely it was Taft against Eisenhower for the big prize of the party. Yet from the Taft camp itself came the prediction of a voting deadlock that could shift the nomination eventually to one of the others or even to a rank outsider, G. Mason Owlett, Republican National Committeeman from Pennsylvania, declared "Anything can happen."

On the floor of this vast stockyards amphitheater, plenty began to happen the minute convention Chairman Joseph W. Martin Jr. cracked a gavel and ordered the call of the roll by states for purposes of nominating a candidate.

Earlier, Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, a symphony in blue, marched down the ramp to the speaker's rostrum to offer a name:

"Mr. Integrity, Mr. Republican, Mr. American, Robert A. Taft."

As Dirksen began speaking, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York stalked out. Dirksen had pointed a finger at the 1944-1948 nominee Wednesday night and grimly accused the governor of "leading us down the road to defeat."

This time Dewey is working for Eisenhower.

Eisenhower had leaped out from yesterday in the delegate strength that finally determines the nominee.

On the roll call, Alabama gave way to Illinois and Dirksen gave way to oratory.

The senator from Illinois offered fellow Sen. Taft to the convention as "the amiable ambassador of our last best hope" to throw the Democrats out after 20 years in power.

"Defender of the Republican faith," Dirksen said, "Greatest assurance against earmarking youth for permanent war . . . A leader seasoned and ripened . . . Man of courage . . . Modern Joshua . . . Saw the autocracy of labor leadership . . . A fighter . . . Great American."

And when Dirksen was through, the GOP was off on one of those dizzy, whirling dervish demonstrations that are the peculiar trademark of American political conventions. It lasted 43 minutes.

The favorite son candidates on whom Eisenhower counts for secondary support—Warren and Stassen—still were hoping for that deadlock that might let one of them get the call of the party for the 1952 political wars.

Sen. William F. Knowland of California put Warren in nomination as "a candidate who can give the leadership the nation now so desperately needs."

"Man to match our mountains," Knowland went on, "executive experience . . . party could unite . . . believes in constitutional government . . . make a great president . . . Inspired leadership . . . understands the spirit that has made America great."

That was the signal for another bell-clanging, shrieking, banner-waving demonstration that ran on for 20 minutes.

A loose coalition seemed to have developed among Taft, Warren and Stassen to stop Eisenhower on the first ballot, in spite of denials of deals from their headquarters.

Reports were getting around that the three had exchanged assurances, in conferences during the day, that they would hold fast through the first round and as long as possible after that.

Taft managers were claiming last night they would roll up around 530 first ballot votes. Warren has 76, Stassen 25—for a total of 631 with Taft's claim of strength. If Eisenhower got all the rest—and there are some in the convention for MacArthur—he would reach 575—short of the 604 needed to nominate.

It was apparent that Taft, Warren and Stassen were acting only in their own interests, that the alliance might fall apart whenever any of them felt he could go it alone.

Washington, (AP) — A bill providing $46,000,000,000 in defense funds for the next 12 months was signed by President Truman yesterday.

It furnishes the cash to establish a powerful 143-wing Air Force by the middle of 1955.

The effective strength of the Air Force now is about 90 wings. A wing ranges from about 18 heavy bombers to 75 fighters; with administrative and maintenance personnel.

Although the bill gives the Army, Navy and Air Force five billion dollars less than the President requested, it does not carry the 46-billion ceiling on military spending voted by the House.

Military leaders contemplate spending more than $50 billion this year, drawing on funds previously appropriated by Congress but not used. They argued that an arbitrary ceiling would wreck the military buildup. The ceiling was removed when Senate and House conferees worked out a compromise bill.

The bill also gives $45 a month extra in combat pay for servicemen in Korea, since the fighting began there. A minimum of six days in the combat area is required for each month's eligibility.

The Navy is authorized in the measure to build a second 65,000-ton aircraft carrier of the Forrestal class. No new funds are supplied for this project, however.

Under the bill, the Army gets $12,339,000,000, the Navy $12,842,000,000 and the Air Force $21,118,000,000.

GOP Convention Parallels 1920, 1940

By Leonard Randolph

To those historians who believe that events repeat themselves in cycles, the current convention in Chicago may indicate that the Republican party has arrived at a crucial moment in its 99-year career.

Political pundits, during the past two weeks, have found parallels between the conventions of 1920, 1940 and 1952.

Pennsylvania's role in each of these conclaves was fundamentally the same. The policy of stalling used by the Keystone delegation marks each of the conventions and, in the past, has relegated the Penn representatives to a position of inconsequence.

There is one other point in which the current meeting closely parallels a past convention—a point which may threaten the unity of the Republican party, and if history does repeat itself, lose the election in November.

The occasion for the first radical split in the Grand Old Party was the 1912 convention in the windy city of Chicago.

Principals in the historic 1912 nominating convention were William Howard Taft, the incumbent president; Theodore Roosevelt and Elihu Root, former Secretary of War and Secretary of State.

Root was a Taft rooster. He was also chosen temporary chairman of the convention.

In 1952 Walter Hallahan is a Taft backer. His appointment as temporary chairman by the National Committee was considered a victory for the Taft forces.

Even before the 1912 convention began, there were whispers of portentous things to come—a rumor had begun that "if the Taft steamroller triumphed" Rough Riders would carry on their own campaign.

The rumors persisted throughout the convention.

National Committee members (divided 42 for Taft against 13 for Roosevelt) had met during the week preceding the convention to settle debate on the seating of contested delegates (see 1952). In 1912, however, 252 seats were contested of the possible 1,078 delegates to the meeting.

Roosevelt tried to make political capital of the fact that the press had been barred from the committee proceedings. Just as this thrust was rolling up pressure, however, the White House took the wind out of its sails by coming out "in favor of" admitting reporters to the meetings.

Thus Roosevelt's first psychological victory was lost. He had also lost the battle within the committee—when the smoke cleared, 238 contests had been decided in favor of Taft.

The fight was carried to the convention floor with Roosevelt supporters demanding that the entire delegation be allowed to vote on the legality of the contested delegates.

When he left his Oyster Bay residence for Chicago to attend the convention and break a long-standing tradition against the presence of candidates in the convention city until the nomination was over, Teddy Roosevelt provided the key phrase for his own unforeseen campaign on an independent ticket.

When asked by a reporter how he felt before entering the fight "in person," Roosevelt beat his chest and roared:

"Like a bull moose . . . It was a cry which echoed and re-echoed throughout the land, put fear in the hearts of strong Republican leaders and cost that party an election of which it had previously been 'assured'."

The Roosevelt faction fought against the authorization of temporary chairman Root. It put up its own candidate—Wisconsin Gov. Francis McGovern—who polled 501 votes to Root's 558.

When Root attempted to take the rostrum, however, his official status was challenged by Zira Moore of the Pennsylvania delegation. Moore's objection was seconded by William Flynn, a second Keystone political leader.

Roosevelt forces were defeated in their drive against Root, however, and, from then on out, the convention swayed solidly behind the Taft machine.

area of influence on the convention floor—did not.

Two members of the Penn delegation—Boose Penrose and Mail Quay—met with others late that night in the first of a series of "conferences" on strategy. They were supporting Roosevelt's nomination up to that time.

But, as is many times the custom in a "smoke-filled room" debate, the talk eventually centered around a "dark horse". The bosses decided on Gov. Herbert Hadley of Missouri.

Hadley had carried the ball for the Roosevelt movement. When the convention went back into regular session he was on the platform with others who had been identified with the Taft supporters.

Just as a compromise candidate (in the person of Hadley) was about to come into being, however, a thoroughly "unexpected" demonstration from the floor diverted audience attention from Hadley, the party bosses and the slim proposal of the "dark horse."

The demonstration in itself was a simple affair. It consisted of one woman in a white dress, a huge Roosevelt banner and the right psychological moment.

The woman, Mrs. W. A. Davis, of Chicago, knew her timing.

When she stood up in the gallery, tossed the long Roosevelt banner billowing out into the convention's canned atmosphere, the tide began to turn "the other way" so far as popular support was concerned.

Following this dramatic gesture, the Roosevelt supporters bolted from the party and the convention settled down to what it considered a mere formality—the nomination of William Howard Taft as its

More Eloquent Than Words!

It is true, of course, that a Cadillac owner is proud of everything about his motor car.

But it is also true that he reserves a special place in his heart for the beautiful crest that rides high on the hood.

For here, as only he can fully appreciate, is one of the most wonderful and unique symbols in all the world of manufactured products.

In fact, it seems safe to say that no other mark of identification speaks so clearly or so eloquently of the product that bears it . . . and of the man who owns it.

It tells, for instance, of magnificent engineering and inspired design—and of experienced craftsmanship and painstaking construction.

It promises mile after mile of superlative motoring enjoyment—and it foretells year after year of dependable and enduring performance.

It proclaims, in short, the Cadillac pledge of quality—that here is an automobile built to the highest standards; it is practical to enforce in the production of a motor car.

And, oh, the wonderful things it says about the man behind the wheel!

It reveals, more surely than if the words were spoken, that he is a man of position and achievement in his own private world of affairs.

It attests to the high regard he places on the safety and the comfort of his fellow passengers.

And it says, with unmistakable clarity, that he is a person of discernment and good taste.

Little wonder that the man who owns a Cadillac takes special pride in the beautiful crest that identifies it and adorns it.

The Cadillac crest tells its most eloquent story when it adorns the magnificent car illustrated above. For here is the illustrious eight-passenger Cadillac "75"—so luxurious, spacious and distinguished that it stands alone among the world's motor cars.

where the Republican party has never been a strong one and the party rolls seldom exceed a small percentage of the total voting population.

Both conventions have been marked by open fights between two leading factions on matters of legal procedure.

And, finally—Both Teddy Roosevelt and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower earned reputation as "fighting men" before entry into practical politics.

There is one added parallel which touches on the Pennsylvania delegation.

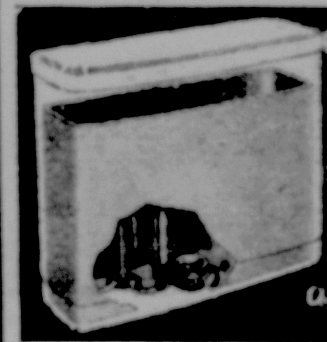

Gov. John S. Fine has been reported by the Associated Press as "fighting mad" over Taft procedures on the convention floor (including Italianan's rebuke Wednesday night).

Fine received his first important appointment from then governor Gifford Pinchot on Jan. 3, 1927, when he was picked to sit as judge in Luzerne County.

The present governor may have received some of his most valuable political training from former State leader Pinchot.

Pinchot, it will be recalled, was an avowed Bull Moose supporter. Whether the nominating convention in Chicago picks Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio or another, unknown candidate, if it fails to select

Is your closet tank a "drip"?

See the NEW Crane "SAHARA" designed to end dripping

Here's a new idea in closet tanks designed to end an old nuisance—dripping caused by high humidity. Heavy rubber insulating liner keeps cold water in tank from cooling the tank's outside surface, thus eliminating excess condensation.

The Sahara tank is available with four popular Crane closets and is also adaptable to many closets now in service.

Come in and see us for full details.

River Crests; Families Flee Lowland Homes

Water Gap ended when the waters began their climb yesterday morning.

A spokesman for Johnson, Drake and Pipher, contractors on the job, said the island was covered fairly early, the trestle was under water and the roadway had disappeared. By 10 p. m., however, the river's rise was definitely slowing down. It rose about three inches between 8 and 9, at Portland Bridge, and only one inch from 9 to 10.

The 11 p. m. check showed the river at Delaware Bridge 14.2 feet above normal—or a bit more than eight feet over flood stage.

This was the crest. Bridge police said the river stopped rising at that point.

Crews Restore Electrical, Phone Service

Telephone and electrical service in a large section of Stroudsburg was disrupted for several hours early yesterday when a tractor-trailer truck crashed into a service pole at Second St. and Kramer Ave. at 1:05 a.m.

Crews from both the Pennsylvania Power and Light Co. and Bell Telephone Co. worked through the early hours of the morning to restore power and completed their work about 10 a.m.

Industrial plants in the section which ranged from Brodheads Creek to N. Ninth St. and from Main St. to the Arlington Heights sections, were among those affected by the power failure. Little time was lost by plants operating a night shift, however, and all operations were started on time yesterday morning.

Bell Telephone Co. reported 117 subscribers were without service. Workmen reported to the scene at 2 a.m., 55 minutes after the collision and by 10 a.m. had over 100 phones back in operation. The telephone service was disrupted when an electric cable cut through the line and crews had to splice the wire.

PP and L crews also were at the scene shortly after the crash and worked through the night to restore electrical power. The pole which stopped the truck operated by Ivan Adams, of 303 Fulmer Ave., Stroudsburg, was owned by PP and L.

Adams told Stroudsburg police he became confused when he approached the intersection, claiming the heavy downpour of rain obstructed his view. When he collided with the pole the lines snapped and the area was thrown into darkness.

The tractor-trailer, owned by Raymond Butz of Henryville RD1, also sidwiped two trucks owned by Stroudsburg Ice Co., but damage was reported slight.

Officers John Tretheway and Richard Wolbert of the Stroudsburg Police Department investigated.

Stroudsburg School Board Awards Contract, Elects New Instructor Of Music

A contract for remodeling the home economics room at Stroudsburg High School was awarded by directors last night to Charles Frank, Stroudsburg contractor. His low bid was $2,290.

Directors were advised by the State Tax Equalization Board that for the year 1951 the assessed valuation in Stroudsburg for tax purposes was 25.49 per cent of the board's findings of real value.

Real value figures fixed by the board for 1951 was $17,850,685, while assessed value was $4,255,240. The 1952 assessed valuation for school purposes amounts to $4,403,265 and the number of per capita taxables is 4,287. The 1952 tax duplicate of the school district has been given the tax collector.

Resignation of Wanda Melrath, music instructor in elementary grades was accepted.

The board elected Miss Alice Bellairs, Stroudsburg, to fill the vacancy. Miss Bellairs is a Mansfield State Teachers College graduate and has had one year of teaching experience. Her salary was fixed at $2,600.

Mrs. Samuel Lee, Stroudsburg, was elected a part-time commercial instructor at $1,500. Kiwanis Club was granted use of the auditorium Wednesday, July 16, for a free show.

Approval was given for blanket bonds for all employees of $5,000 each regular and $2,500 for outside coverage.

Total funds of $112,660.74 are in the district fiscal department of which $49,996.66 is in the active general fund and $61,560.67 is in U. S. Treasury Bonds.

Bills amounting to $4,875.29 were approved and ordered paid. The bond of Warren Loney, as district treasurer, in the sum of $25,000 was approved.

Directors adopted a resolution approving the posting of $100,000 in collateral securities by Stroudsburg Security Trust Co., district depositor, with Provident Trust Co.

burg Police Department investigated. Chief of Police James P. McConnell said Adams will be charged with disorderly conduct pending further investigation.

Legionnaires To Play Hosts To Convention

At a meeting last night members of George N. Kemp post, American Legion, continued their plans for the district convention here on July 19.

Steps were taken toward the completion of a parade schedule which is expected to include at least "20 musical organizations" and will be "one of the largest" the borough has had in years, Legion officials said.

In conjunction with the convention, Legion officials announced, members of the American Legion baseball team will run a special "tag day" on July 19.

At 7 that night a parade will begin at Eighth and Main Sts., Stroudsburg, and proceed to the East Stroudsburg playground.

All candidates for State commander as well as candidates for smaller State offices, will attend the convention here.

In the only action connected with the convention proceedings, Leo A. Achtermann nominated Kemp post and county commander Elmer Heffer for the post of 30th District commander.

The post members unanimously endorsed the motion.

Be Sure---Be Safer!

With more than 63,000,000 motorists planning to take to the road throughout America this Summer on short trips and long jaunts, it becomes more important than ever for car owners to make certain their vehicles are in the best mechanical shape possible in the interest of their own safety and the safety of others on the highway.

Many travelers were killed and injured during the Summer vacation period last year in accidents involving automobiles with mechanical defects.

In most cases these defects can be adjusted or repaired rather easily and at reasonable cost, for experts have found that the major mechanical deficiencies are worn tires, faulty brakes, badly focused headlights and loose steering mechanisms. While having these things checked, it also would be advisable to have thorough inspections made of such things as exhaust systems, windshield wipers, horns, rear-view and side-view mirrors and window glass.

Such precautions should be taken by all car owners a few days before setting out on a trip. Of course, this is especially the case for those who drive cars eight or ten years old, or older; in that category it has been found that thorough maintenance checkups are needed progressively more often to insure safe operation.

Be sure and be safer.

Hail The Champ

Even Americans who have never seen the ocean are thrilled that our new liner, the SS. United States, is the new speed queen of the North Atlantic.

On her maiden voyage the new vessel, our largest and one of the biggest in the world, broke the east-west speed record held for years by Britain's Queen Mary.

Many years ago, the Yankee clippers were the fastest ships in the world. Congratulations to Commodore Harry Manning for bringing back some of that glory and for showing that America can win on the seas in peacetime as well as in war.

Smart Neighbors

Although its expenditures have risen 50 per cent since the start of the Korean War, the Canadian Government has raised taxes enough to remain on a pay-as-you-go basis—and has reduced its national debt, besides. It has had a budget surplus every year since World War II.

The United States Government, meanwhile, has gone deeper into the red almost every year. And will again this year.

As the U. S. Chamber of Commerce suggests, we might well learn some useful lessons in finance from our northern neighbor, whose problems are as great as ours in proportion to its population and resources. And the greatest lesson would be that to spend a dollar before collecting it is bad government.

The Roman senate, in 250 B.C., tried to ease traffic problems by passing a law prohibiting women from driving chariots.

Americans spent $100 million a year on foreign travel before World War Two.

Average automobile on U.S. highways is eight and one-half years old.

My New York

—By Mel Heimer

New York—This is the season when the contest winners come to town—the beauty contest victors, the men who have been elected Mr. Certified Public Accountant for 1952, the freckle-faced small ones who have won spelling matches, and so on. A trip to New York, complete with visit to Radio City Music Hall and El Morocco, seems to be the uniform grand prize of contests these months.

One of the more likeable of such visitors has been a pretty 20-year-old bookkeeper from Germantown, Pa., named Mary Nico, who was chosen "The Ideal White Collar Girl of Today" from among the female employees of 137 offices of a finance company throughout the country.

Miss Nico, who just has finished visit here, endeared herself to everyone because of her enthusiasm. She loved riding on "two-story" buses, looking down Broadway at night and sipping sodas in the Empire State building.

Touring around with Mary was one of the most amusing and pleasant diversions of the summer; she got lost in the lobby of the Waldorf-Astoria, she had "Eggs Benedict" in Sardi's (Why, they're poached eggs on muffin, with ham sauce), she went shopping in the Fifth Avenue stores (clutter to Pop and Mom from Mary: "I saw my coat for $225 marked down to $175") and she visited Grant's Tomb ("Is he really buried there?").

Perhaps the most interesting thing was watching Mary try to hail a cab after the theater. Man and woman after man and woman pushed past her, beating her to the punch—until finally, exasperated, she got out into the street, whistled and waved an arm. She was almost run over by a cab but she triumphantly got one to stop—and as she was about to climb in, was beaten to it by a middle-aged couple expert in these things. The cabbie looked at her, shrugged idly, and drove off.

Miss Nico finally did get a cab—and promptly met a typical New York cab driver. Always talking. This one told her he had a special gift of foretelling the future, though a funny whirling sensation in his duodenum that signaled he was in communication with his special spirit agent, a young Italian spook. "The agent," the cabbie said seriously, "always tells me when a fare is gonna tip good or not." Mary pondered that, and after she got out she tipped the cabbie a quarter for a 65-cent haul.

"My agent was right," the cabbie said happily. "You tip good, dear."

Another contest winner in town the last few days has been tall, dark and handsome Charlie Pawley, a University of Miami sophomore who was named "Mr. Formal" by a clothing company that held a contest for male undergraduates of more than 100 colleges throughout the country.

The theory behind this contest appeared to be to try to select some broad-shouldered hot shot who looked exquisite in summer formal clothes, and I must report faithfully that in picking Charlie he hit the jackpot. He's 19 and he looks 25 and my personal guess is that most of the saddle-shod females at Miami U. are at least mildly daft about him.

Strange thing: Charlie has been virtually all over the world in his 19 years since his father is an engineer. He lived in India for more than a year and in Hong Kong for almost that long, and yet he was just about as bowled over by poor little old New York as Mary Nico was. What got

These Days - - By George E. Sokolsky

Chicago—When this appears in print, it is probable that the report of the Credentials committee of the Republican convention will have been voted upon. That decision will determine whether the candidate will be Taft or Eisenhower.

I desire to give some of the background of this situation. The contest in three states, Georgia, Louisiana, and Texas, were crucial because neither candidate had enough votes without them as long as Pennsylvania and California were on the fence. The Taft people felt that the decision concerning Georgia was crucial for them. The Credentials committee had given Georgia to Taft, with the Pennsylvania member voting in favor of Taft. Overnight the Pennsylvania member, Judge Thomas M. Lewis, changed his mind. The numerous explanations as to what matters is that he is not for Taft, he is for Eisenhower. The Taft people had expected him to fight their battle on the floor of the convention. His change of position indicated that Gov. Fine of Pennsylvania had gone over to Eisenhower from his formerly neutral position.

Gov. Fine's position in this convention has been an extraordinarily confused one. Pennsylvania's 70 delegates, thrown to one side or the other, can be crucial. Gov. Fine has been throughout a MacArthur man, but as Gen. MacArthur's candidacy did not develop, Gov. Fine moved about among the candidates without binding himself, yet giving the impression that his delegation was not supporting any one candidate altogether. Taft counted on 19 in Pennsylvania.

In that state, the pressure from big business in support of Gen. Eisenhower has been constant. I have spoken to a number of Pennsylvania delegates and they particularly mentioned numerous banking interests whose opposition to Taft has been clear throughout. It appears that the Republican organization in that state could not resist this opposition. Similarly, in Michigan, automobile interests have been an important anti-Taft force.

The queer thing about all this is that while Taft has fought for and defended industry in the Senate and suffers politically from the Taft-Hartley law, which was designed to give industry a square deal, big business has been against him throughout and has brought every pressure on New York, Pennsylvania, California and Michigan delegates to be against Taft.

I have watched this play, wondering all the time how these business men expect anyone hereafter to fight their battles. I have spoken to a number of senators about these pressures and they have expressed surprise at them.

The Willie campaign was such a disaster that it was not expected that anyone would try it again.

The result of all this is unfortunate for the Republican party, whoever the candidate may be. The acrimonious campaign that the candidates have been conducting against each other and the emergence of Tom Dewey as the 1952 Mark Hanna are leaving in their wake a trail of disappointment from which recovery will be very difficult, if at all possible.

Perhaps the great ovation to Herbert Hoover on Tuesday night was, in a measure, due to his efforts at finding peace within the party. In this, he has not been successful, but the effort is respected. Today he has broken a long precedent not to favor candidates by coming out in support of Sen. Taft. Mr. Hoover issued his statement in an atmosphere of rumors of Taft's defeat, to make his record clear as to where he stands. He, like so many other older Republicans, is unhappy about the tone, the pressures, the acrimony of this convention.

It is not so much Taft or Eisenhower as it is that something alien and unpleasant has come into this convention which is undoubtedly reflected in American life. It is the use of mob psychology to influence a deliberative body; it is the use of pressures on individuals so potent that they dare not resist them. Again, no matter who is nominated, all this has been so offensive that it is discussed on all sides, particularly among men who, in their own states, are important, and who resent being ordered about as they have been. This applies to some of the most distinguished men in this convention.

So, we shall know within a day what the outcome must be. It will be decided by the vote of the convention on the report of the Credentials committee.

Try And Stop Me

—by Bennet Cerf

Mr. Young checked his monthly garage bill with growing ire, and complained to his wife, "Why, that robber charged me $20 to tow you a mile to the service station that day you got stuck on Ninetieth Street." "That's not exorbitant," maintained Mrs. Young. "He earned every penny of it. I had the brakes jammed on all the way."

A reporter asked Orville Wright, just after the Nazis had virtually destroyed Rotterdam from the air, if he regretted having developed the airplane. "No," said Wright, "I don't. I feel about it much as I do about fire. I regret the damage it does, but am mighty glad the human race discovered it."

Hollywood

—by Gene Handsaker

Hollywood—His pants are blue jeans, stenciled "Honor Rancho" in yellow across the seat and the fronts and backs of the ankles. The man in these clothes is Walter Wanger—serving a four-month sentence for shooting Jennings Lang.

Wanger is the veteran, silver-haired, distinguished-looking movie producer and husband of Joan Bennett. His eyes flash anger when he walks into an office of this honor farm for county prisoners. "I want my lawyer," he says coldly. Meaning he doesn't want to talk.

You sit down with him anyway and ask questions. Slowly he begins to thaw. He's taking notes, he confides, for a movie about this beautifully landscaped, efficiently run institution.

This man who has mingled with the cream of Hollywood society speaks of 709 fellow-inmates in the farm's minimum-security section.

"I've been amazed at the intelligence, high caliber, and alertness of the men I have been in contact with. They are from all walks of life. You can discuss anything with them—Politics, sports, business, motion pictures. They read the papers and all the good books. There's a good library here. Their choices are poetry, philosophy, westerns, and novels—in that order."

Wanger sleeps, in a 38-cot barracks, between a burglar and a burglar-forger. He is assigned to the athletic and recreation office. He arranges baseball games between the barracks, helps arrange benches for movies, and afterwards helps dust and sweep out.

Does he sleep well? Wanger nods solemnly. The food? "No comment." The farm's chief offi-

Grass can do it. People with lawns to mow are, we find, fascinated by the recent arrest of a McKeesport, Pennsylvania, woman who cranked up a power mower in front of a hardware store, took off like a flying saucer, collided with a freight and wound up in stir. We are yet to locate an occupant of a house with a lawn who is not sympathetic toward this gal. They understand what lawns and lawn mowing do to the human mind. The fellow with a small lawn to cut has his troubles but it is the person with an acre or more and a huge power mower whose heart goes out to the Pennsylvania offender. A lot of queer behavior during the summer months all over America can be attributed to grass. And the Republican platform does nothing about the matter.

It is possible to become a psychopathic case behind a lawn mower. (In fact, it is easy.) We have known men to go nuts behind mowers on demitasse lawns. But the fellow who has an oversized plot and can only tackle it with power is the one who can really blow his top. There are the problems of gas, lubrication, compression, spark plugs, carburetion and controls. And, topping them all, the matter of taking the blade out of the machine and the cost of getting it sharpened. In the McKeesport case the principal saw a power mower in front of the store, cranked it and was off to a wild "green yonder," suddenly crashing into a freight train. (Power mowers are good, but not that good.) One of 'em might cut through a vacation train or an old local, but not a freight, if the freight happened to be in shape for the match.

The operator of the mower was arrested and accused of drinking. It seems to us that where liquor is involved a lawn mower is an extenuating circumstance. It can drive a person to drink. There are countless cases where men and women of excellent character and flawless conduct have taken to liquor and weird behavior after acquiring homes with lawn problems. We know a man who takes to drink with the first blade of green grass in April and doesn't draw a sober breath until the last blade dies in autumn. Watching him, it is a question whether he or the lawn mower is functioning with a full tank. Boil, we think.

There have been times when it was necessary to send this man out to be overhauled and reshaped instead of the mower. He sent a wire to the McKeesport operator: "My deepest sympathies and complete understanding. I know how the sight of a lawn mower can affect the mind. Better luck next time, but suggest you grab a freight train and attack a lawn mower."

Chicago Note
Of all sad cracks to clear a room
The saddest are "A man than whom . . ."

As a dramatic critic, we would say the Chicago convention might have gone over bigger if it had been tried out first in Philadelphia or New Haven . . . This was a tough week for the fellow who wanted to follow a baseball game, a boxing bout, a who-dunit and the convention the same night . . . "Information Please" packs the principals so close together that they come out steamed and pressed . . . Franklin P. Adams looked at much better the second time this it was rumored General Electric had not only put in a new fus but rewired him . . . Gregory Ratoff is still claiming a foul over that question "What means money, a tool and a first name?" the answer being "Jack" . . . "Red" Barber does the General Electric commercial so well because of his long experience with "batteries" . . . Mae Craig asks a question or video panels as if she would be terribly disappointed if a guest took it with out offense . . . Can you remember away back when you could keep uninformed or a convention if you were determined?

cer tells you that the inmates' food is wholesome but "neither good nor bad." Vegetables for the mess halls are grown by the inmates on the farm's 2,800 acres. "It's as interesting a study in democracy as I've ever seen," Wanger tells you. "The way the Mexicans and the colored boys and the rest all mix around . . . I'm delighted I've been accepted because I think they're a fine crowd. I don't mean just the inmates—the officers, too." He has become almost jaunty. "I'm happy being here," he says. "I feel more at ease than I do in many places."

CUTIES

—By E. Simms Campbell

"Don't worry if you don't see me for a while, darling. I found that thousand dollars you had hidden."

Washington Report

—by Fulton Lewis, Jr.

consider here at the National Convention yesterday.

It was a new low in convention politics. Virtually all other delegates arose to applaud and remain standing and shouting for five minutes when the Wisconsin senator strode to the rostrum for his slashing attack on Communists in the administration. They repeated the performance when he finished.

There are two possible explanations. One is that the New York Governor evidently disagrees with anyone who possesses enough courage to expose Communists. The other is that Dewey used the insult as a means of serving notice on Sen. Robert A. Taft and his political cronies that if Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower wins the Republican nomination, there will be an all-out war between the party's two factions.

I am inclined to accept the first explanation. In 1948 when Dewey was planning White House redecorations even before he was elected, he urged suspension of public hearings by the House committee on un-American activities. His reason was that he "didn't want to disturb any elements among the voters by further probes of Reds in the government and elsewhere."

The only ones being made uncomfortable by the Communist investigation were the Communists themselves and their Moscow puppets disguised as Liberals.

The then chairman of the un-American Activities Committee, former Rep. J. Parnell Thomas, yielded to Dewey's demands. This error, added to the Dewey cream puff campaign for the presidency, resulted in his defeat. Apparently he hasn't learned a thing in four years.

McCarthy received not only a rousing ovation but even more important, held the apt attention of his audience. They wanted to hear what the fighting ex-Marine had to say about his private war against the Reds on the public payroll—the ones that Mr. Truman could never find.

McCarthy is immune to insults from politicians who prefer to put their own interest above the security of the country. The silence of the 96 New Yorkers was hardly noticed, with 15,000 others cheering and waving American flags and banners.

The insult was minor. But the man who made the decision to refuse even common courtesy to a fellow Republican, whose political fame may even exceed his own, is not minor. Dewey will be in the high councils of the Republican party if Eisenhower is nominated. If the general wins, Dewey might even wind up as attorney general.

The Justice Department supervises the operations of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. This is the only agency of the government that has had the foresight and courage to tackle domestic Reds. Their files are vital to our security. They should never be used to promote personal political ambitions. They could be so used if an egotistical attorney general wanted an elective office badly enough to sidetrack investigation or prosecution in return for political support.

Don't think it can't happen here. It already has. Mr. Truman and his attorney general, now Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark, were angling for Liberal support when they decided that the case of Moscow's errand boy, Alger Hiss, was a "Red Herring." Dewey contributed when he succeeded in calling off the House committee hearings in 1948.

I suggest that the senator from Wisconsin may retain a grain of vindictiveness in his soul. In the event the Governor of New York ever has occasion, as a member of a presidential cabinet, to appear before a congressional committee, the senator from Wisconsin may well be sitting in on the hearings. He is a member of the Appropriations and Expenditures in Executive Departments committees of the Senate. In fact, he may even be chairman of the latter group which handles most of the important senatorial investigations.

If the encounter ever materializes, I assure you I shall be there to report the details in full. There ought to be a payoff when politics gets that cheap.

Nelson Draws 20-Year Term For Sedition

Pittsburgh (AP) — Steve Nelson, 49, former chairman of the Communist party in Western Pennsylvania, was sentenced to 20 years in jail yesterday for sedition.

Judge Harry M. Montgomery, who presided at Nelson's trial, also fined him $10,000 and ordered him to pay court costs. It was the maximum penalty and the stiffest sentence ever given a Communist in Pennsylvania.

A jury in February convicted Nelson of violating the state's anti-sedition law. That act forbids advocating measures aimed at the forcible overthrow of the government.

Nelson also faces a Federal sedition charge for his activities in Western Pennsylvania.

In addition the House Un-American Activities Committee in 1948 accused Nelson of passing atomic secrets he obtained from an American scientist to the Russian vice consul in San Francisco. Nelson and the scientist, Prof. Joseph W. Weinberg, have denied the charge.

Weinberg was indicted in May on a charge of lying under oath when he told the committee three years ago he was never a member of the Communist party.

Before imposing sentence, Judge Montgomery turned down a plea for mercy and leniency, remarking Nelson previously was "arrogant and defiant." Said the judge: "He either is in innocent and deserves his freedom or he is guilty and should be given the extreme penalty. The jury found him guilty, and I see no reason for compromise."

New Realty Assessment Law Praised

State College (AP) — Pennsylvania's new real estate tax assessment system was described yesterday as a step toward equalization of assessments for tax purposes.

Norman A. Peil, Easton, chairman of the Legislative Committee of the Pennsylvania Association of County Commissioners, outlined provisions of the new law at a conference of county commissioners and assessors.

The law, passed by the 1951 session of the Legislature, requires counties of less than 250,000 population within five years to concentrate assessing power in a chief assessor appointed by the county commissioners.

"If explained to the people," Peil said, "it will help to make the transition to the new system much easier."

Peil said that while establishment of the new system will cost the counties money, its operation should cost less than present methods.

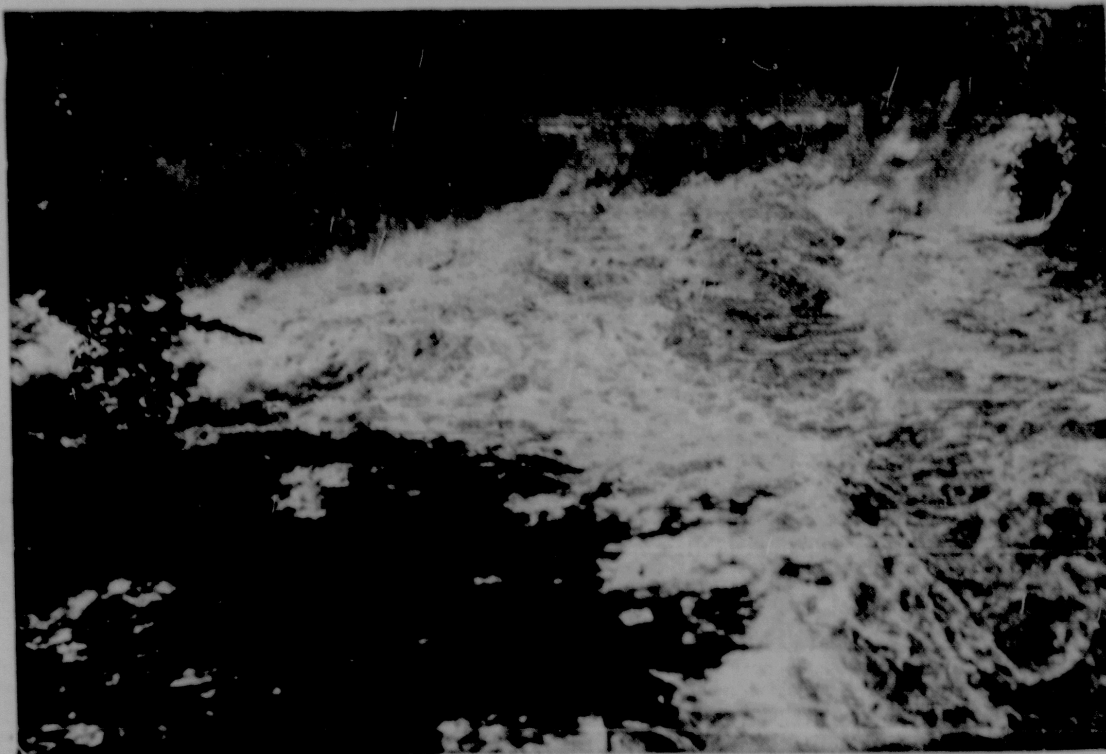

Lutheran Youth To Hold Outing

The Lutheran Youth Fellowship of Grace Lutheran Church, East Stroudsburg, will combine a hayride with a swimming outing on Saturday to Lake Wallenpaupack. The group will leave the church at 10 a.m. and be transported to the lake in a large trailer truck provided by John R. Lesoine of Stroudsburg. The group will make the summer camp of Misses Shirley and Mildred Kulp their headquarters for the day.

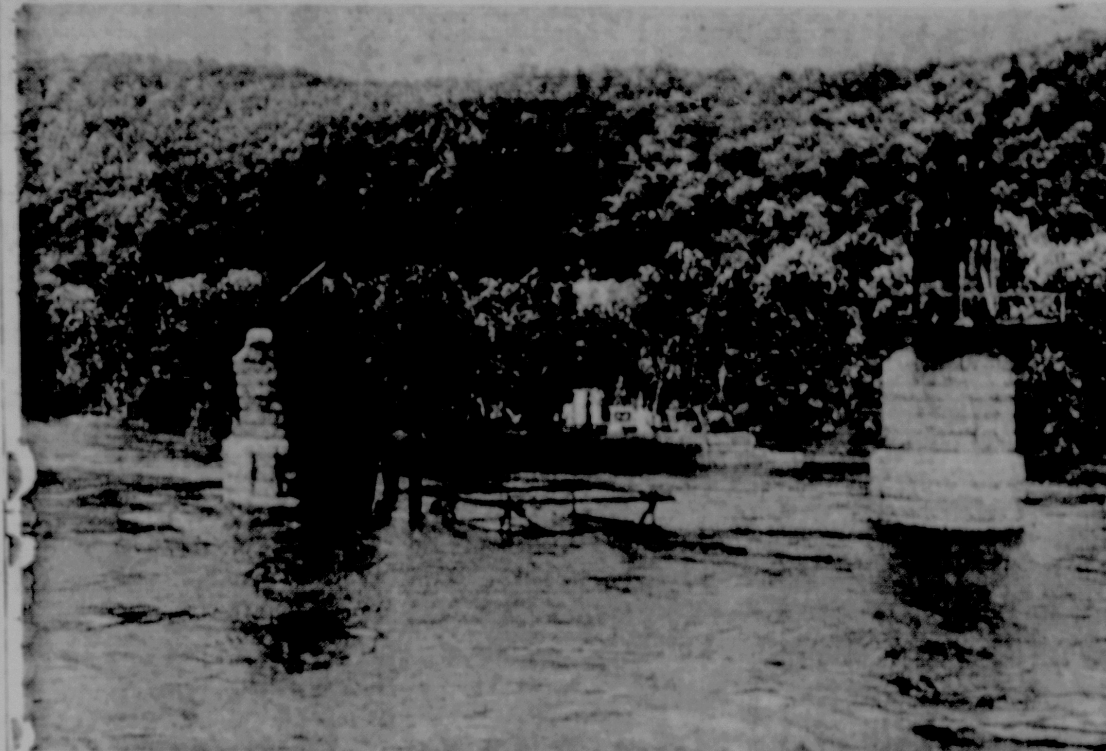

Each person is requested to take his own lunch, bathing suit and towel. Refreshments will also be available at the lake. Rev. William F. Wunder will serve as chaplain. The group expects to arrive home at an early evening hour. All members and friends of the Lutheran Youth are invited to attend. There will be no charge for the trip.

Couple Sells Township Tract

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Gay, Arlington, Va., sold to Elizabeth Henderson LaBar, Sciota, a tract on the Wilkes-Barre-Easton turnpike in Chestnut Hill Township, according to deeds recorded yesterday at the courthouse.

TYPICAL OF THE RAGING WATERS in small streams which serve as tributaries of the Delaware River is this scene of McMichael's Creek at Fifth St., yesterday. Heavy rains in mountain areas caused creeks and streams to cut a roaring swath through the countryside; brought flood stages to some lowland areas. (Daily Record photo)

LIKE TWO STAUNCH PILLARS of strength in a storm, these concrete abutments for the new Delaware River bridge thrust upward out of the surging waters of the River. Mechanical equipment, used in the construction of the bridge, is marooned on an island between the two columns where it has been securely moored. Most of the work currently being done at the site takes place on shore where a large group of workers continued at their jobs yesterday afternoon. (Daily Record photo)

Motorist Throws Expectant Mother Cat Onto Emmerich Lawn; Kittens Born Dead

At 4:30 p.m. Wednesday, a car stopped in front of Mrs. Eschella Emmerich's home at Minisink Hills.

Mrs. Emmerich, an employee of the General Hospital in East Stroudsburg, is well-known for "having a soft heart."

Some children in the neighborhood saw the car pull up and stop.

The next thing they saw both surprised and shocked them—the occupants of the car had thrown a female cat from the vehicle.

With a sickening thud the cat landed on the dirt in Mrs. Emmerich's front yard.

The children told her the full story. Mrs. Emmerich picked up the cat and took it into the house.

One thing became immediately obvious—the cat was about to increase the feline population.

Mrs. Emmerich nursed the cat along, stayed up all night with it, called a veterinarian and, in an effort to keep chill from the animal's body, put a hot water bottle in with the expectant mother.

Last night the kitten arrived—all of them dead—apparently killed by the shock of being thrown from the car into the hands of a human being.

As Mrs. Emmerich battled valiantly last night to save the only remaining life entrusted to her hands—the mother cat—she had time to reflect, a hot water bottle on the ways of mankind.

"I guess it's just that everybody knows I'll take in anything that needs help," she said.

Then, with a touch of sadness, tinged with the anger of a woman who loves animals and cannot stand seeing them mistreated: "Well—they got the right house, all right. But imagine them doing a thing like that."

"If they'd only come up to the house and given me the cat, I'd have taken it in . . ."

Sell it . . . buy it . . . rent it . . . oh . . .

Farm Agency Names County Committeeman

Ralph D. VanBuskirk, of Saylorsburg RD 1, has been appointed to a three-year term on the Monroe County Committee of the Farmers Home Administration. County committeemen determine eligibility of farm loan applicants. County Supervisor Frank Orendo said the Monroe County Committee also includes George F. Kleintop of Saylorsburg RD 1, and Charles C. Amilage, Stroudsburg RD 1.

Farm loans are made to those farmers who cannot obtain reasonable credit from other sources. Loans can be obtained at four percent, up to 40 years, on the purchase, development or enlargement of farms. Repair, improvement, construction, or alteration loans also are made at four percent up to 33 years.

Up to $7,000 may be borrowed in a fiscal year at five percent interest to purchase machinery, livestock, seed, feed, fertilizer or other operating needs. There is a maximum repayment period on these loans of seven years.

The Farmers Home Administration office is located in the Allentown Postoffice Building.

Board Alters School Plan For County

The Monroe County Board of School Directors held a meeting Monday night, with two new members seated for the first time, and voted to alter the county school plan.

New members were Robert C. Frailey, Pocono Township, and Howard S. Eckert, East Stroudsburg.

The two men replaced Floyd Cyphers and Adam Smith who were not reelected to the board. Frailey and Eckert were elected at the last school directors' convention.

In its major action of the night, the county board approved a Hamilton Township request to change the school plan for Monroe County to pave the way for the new five-township West End jointure.

The board also went on record as approving the jointure recently set up by Hamilton, Chestnut Hill, Ross, Polk and Eldred Townships.

An original county school plan set up several years ago placed Hamilton with Stroudsburg borough in school appointments.

Until formation of the jointure, Hamilton had sent its high school students to the borough on a tuition basis.

Floods Lash Swiftwater, Henryville

According to Mrs. Lucy Angstadt, owner of the Lighthouse. The dam and swimming pool are owned by Russell Henry, operator of the Henryville House.

No estimate of damage was available. Waters began to recede about noon yesterday. Two automobiles were stranded on Route 90 as the waters gushed across the paving just south of the Lighthouse. One car, which attempted to push the other through the raging Paradise dike, was swept about 30 yards west of the highway and the other was pushed about ten feet from the road by pressure of the creek. The motorists waded to dry ground and left their cars to await a calmer sea.

Paradise Creek also played havoc at Pete Rossi's Pocono Garden Lodge at Paradise Valley. Water seeped into the building spreading across the dining room and ripped trees and scattered debris around the outside of the structure. A large swimming pool was over-run and several boats and canoes were weighted with mud and are now being retrieved from the creek's bottom. Employees worked through the early hours of the morning battling the flood and were still digging out last night.

Broadheads Creek flooded a section of Second St. in Stroudsburg and made a couple temporarily homeless. Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Rittcher who live in a small home owned by Mrs. Eleanor Martinez at the rear of 14 Second St., were chased from their shelter at 3 a. m. when the muddy water seeped through the frame building. Water receded early yesterday afternoon to allow the Rittchers to return home.

The raging Broadheads also inundated the basement of Mrs. Martinez' residence and poured into Second St. at several spots, sweeping across the road.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Heller who live in their trailer home behind Gottier Ribbon Mills on Second St., also felt the sting of the stream. Water partially covered Heller's automobile, parked in front of the trailer.

The water also climbed to within several feet of the Les Abelloff garage and Gottier's Mill. On the east bank of the creek in East Stroudsburg eight used cars parked in the lot owned by Paul Held, Hudson car dealer, were half buried in the muddy stream. Others nearby were driven from the rising stream to higher ground. Residents in that section said the water was the highest in about ten years.

In Swiftwater two women vacationing at their summer home along Swiftwater Creek had to be rescued by firemen from Mt. Pocono Volunteer Fire Co. One of the rescuers said "it was more hysteria than actual danger."

Strout Realty, Inc., Appoints Dietrick Local Representative

By James B. Gaffney

A. Norman Dietrick, Snyder'sville, has been named representative of Strout Realty, Inc. in this region.

Mr. Dietrick recently established a forestry service office here with headquarters at Snyder'sville. The branch office of Strout Realty will be located there.

James B. Gaffney

Stout Organization started operations in 1900 and has since extended its activities to a nation-wide scope with hundreds of offices Coast-to-Coast. Through 1951, over 100,000 sales have been made through this concern.

Mr. Dietrick's territory will cover a radius of 15 miles or more. Arrangements have been made for a descriptive write-up of this section, with descriptions of farms, homes and resort properties, and highway businesses for sale will be placed in the Strout catalog for nation-wide distribution.

Pennsylvania Power & Light Co. filed yesterday with the Securities and Exchange Commission the necessary registration statement covering the recently announced issue of 100,000 shares of new preferred stock.

The First Boston Corporation and Drexel & Co., have been named as joint managers of a group of investment bankers which will underwrite this preferred stock.

E. F. Gore, an authorized representative of Sears, Roebuck and Co., introduced to the shopping public in the store last week, the recording machine which verbally sells "the displayed article in a ten second talk, was shifted from one location to another and various items were tested during the week for results. "About two of the six articles on display at the talking counter moved well," Stadfeld said.

The device begins operation immediately after a customer trips the switch located under a rubber pad attached to the floor directly in front of the display. The machine is hidden but the voice booms the sales talk with perfection. The Stroudsburg store is only the third in Penney's 1600-store chain to try the machine. And the results to date have been good.

Broadheads Creek near Cresco caused many Summer residents to fear being chased from the bungalows but while no serious damage was reported, several cabin cellars were touched by the rising water.

About 5 a. m. the rains finally stopped.

Northwestern Area Hardest Hit By Flood

By The Associated Press

The northeastern section of Pennsylvania dug out last night from dirt and debris spread by flash floods which hit many sections as the result of a two-day rainstorm.

Hardest hit was Wayne County and its county seat, Honesdale, where flood water boiled out of the Dyberry and Lackawaxen Rivers and spilled through about one-fifth of the town. Damage throughout the county was estimated at $750,000 with Honesdale getting the brunt of it. There the damage will run at least a half million dollars, borough officials said.

At Hawley, seven miles southeast of Honesdale, an earthen dam was washed away wrecking a stretch of the Erie Railroad tracks and disrupting water service for most of the town's 3,000 residents.

Elsewhere over the northeastern part of the state, where as much as seven inches of rainfall was recorded for the two-day storm, rivers were subsiding after running brimful and threatening to flood. The Lehigh River at Lehighton in Carbon County did go over the flood crest of nine feet yesterday but no flood damage was reported.

The Lehigh crested at 13.3 feet at Allentown. The Delaware River hit a peak of 15.81 feet above normal at Milford before the waters began to recede.

Perkiomen Valley had trouble, too, with high water and a wash-out on the Reading Railroad's Philadelphia to Allentown line caused a derailment of two cars of a 137-car freight train.

But it was in Honesdale that the greatest damage and flood excitement occurred. It was the third time in 16 years that flash floods struck the area but, unlike the disaster of 1942 when 27 persons lost their lives, there were no casualties.

The Federal-State Flood Forecasting Service said a three-inch rainfall in the upper Susquehanna River caused sharp rises in the river stage but there was no flooding.

Western Pennsylvania received some rainfall from the storm but for the last 24 hours of the storm precipitation amounts generally were less than a tenth of an inch. Fair and warmer weather is the forecast for the entire state today.

Walter S. Penney, distributor in this area for Gulf Oil Co. products, has received word of the retirement of Robert E. Garrett who for 41 years has been associated with Gulf and for many years was general manager of the Philadelphia Sales Division. This division encompasses Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware, the District of Columbia, Virginia and West Virginia.

Max Stadfeld, manager of the Stroudsburg J. C. Penney store has expressed approval of the innovation at his store, a display counter that talks.

Introduced to the shopping public in the store last week, the recording machine which verbally sells "the displayed article in a ten second talk, was shifted from one location to another and various items were tested during the week for results. "About two of the six articles on display at the talking counter moved well," Stadfeld said.

The device begins operation immediately after a customer trips the switch located under a rubber pad attached to the floor directly in front of the display. The machine is hidden but the voice booms the sales talk with perfection. The Stroudsburg store is only the third in Penney's 1600-store chain to try the machine. And the results to date have been good.

Flash Flood On Lackawaxen Causes Damage Estimated At $750,000 In Honesdale Region

Honesdale — This town swam out of a flood yesterday to find the terrific rains had caused about $150,000 damage.

The sky uncorked its Sunday punch between 1 and 3 a. m. During that period, or a bit later, the Lackawaxen River and the Dyberry Creek stormed out of their banks to play havoc with the town.

One after the other bridges went down. Fortina bridge went down on Route 6; a stretch between Honesdale and Hawley lost its bridge and a large chunk of road; another bridge went down on Route 351 near Tyler Hill; a fourth sagged into the storming water on Route 106 between Indian Orchard and Narrowsburg, N. Y.

The washouts there and on township roads left the town nearly isolated. Route 90 was buried under the flood.

The State Highway Department estimated $250,000 damage to the Development of a new canal permits ships of 4,000 tons to sail from Amsterdam to Basel, Switzerland.

bridge alone. The highway damage centered within a radius of three or four miles around Honesdale.

Major damage was suffered by the Husko Shoe Factory, a sturdy three-story brick building built on the edge of the Lackawaxen.

About 8 a. m. the center portion of one wall crumbled into the torrent.

Water spewed into the first floor of the factory. Machinery toppled into the river after the wall. Smaller machines were washed away.

Twelve persons in the building escaped without injury.

Drinking water remained O. K. in the town. Neighbors turned to, and helped each other. Nearly all residences had four or five feet of water in the basement and small pumps were broken out.

Twelve families were marooned but taken off in boats. At the shoe factory men and women employees pitched in to fill bags with sand, and sand-bag the gaping washout in the river wall. Machinery—what was left—was salvaged and removed

HOTTEST DRIEST

OLD-TIME FARMERS who remember "way back when" the summers were hotter and the winters colder, the grass was greener and the livestock fatter, better not brag about the drought of 1901 to any farmers around southwestern Missouri. The weatherman says the present drought is "the worst ever." This June, with 21 continuous days of 90 degree temperatures or more was not only the hottest, but also the driest June on record for the state. Farmers like O. D. Putnam, of Springfield, have to feed their herds improved pasture of orchard grass and clover to take place of dried-up grazing lands. Other dairy farmers must haul water from half-filled creeks to keep their cattle and other livestock alive. Although it's nothing to be happy about, these farmers some day will brag about the "drought of '52."

Hot, thirsty cow finds the farm pool a mud-baked dry hole. Some farmers, like this one, have to feed their herds hay because pastures are dried out.

Prolonged dry weather forces farmers to cull the dairy herds to save feed.

Dairy farmers haul more than 800 gallons of water a day from nearby creek.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

It's a year of extremes, drought and floods, hot and cold, everything happening at once or nothing at all. Certainly when we were complaining about the parched ground the other day, we didn't expect it to be a quagmire today.

Yet at the picnic which Troop 97, Boy Scouts, gave for their families last night, we had to seek the high ground at the playground, and you could see the muddy grass, the stream-bedged bushes on either side, and the smaller children had a wonderful time with mud puddles.

It was a nice picnic anyway, with the food so good and with the breeze so gentle and the air so fresh and cool—cold might be a better word, as you shivered to see the boys swimming in the gathering dusk, and minding it not at all.

Anyway they had a fire and hot dogs to warm them up afterwards, and the mothers, sleepy from the air and food, at least had no dishes to worry about when they got home.

You know, it's refreshing to have a family included for a change. So often our organizations, even the most worthy and meritorious, plan things which draw the members of a family in separate ways.

It's fine for parents to be on boards and committees and community projects. It's wonderful for children to have camps and outings and groups of their own. But once in a while it's good for a family to do things as a unit—to have a common memory of shared pleasure.

GOP Board Entertained At Custard Home

The executive board of the Monroe County Council of Republican Women met yesterday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. J. Russell Custard, Middle Smithfield, to select a nominating committee for 1952. Mrs. O. P. Hoffman was named chairman with other members of the committee to be announced later.

Present for the meeting were: Mrs. Olaf Pedersen, Mrs. Clyde Pyle, Mrs. Irving Kiffin, Mrs. Walter Stanard, Mrs. Spencer Cramer, Miss Almee Girard, Mrs. Fred Davis, Mrs. F. Harold Lanterman, Mrs. Paul Lloyd, Mrs. Floyd Bachman, Mrs. Elwood Doli, Mrs. Nora Leffler, Mrs. W. A. Rake, Mrs. O. P. Hoffman, Mrs. Foster Minnich, Mrs. Amzi Altomero, Mrs. George L. Smith, Mrs. William Gorman, Mrs. Russell Scott Jr., and Mrs. Carl Wagner.

Around The Stroudsburgs

Mr. and Mrs. William Hart and children, Harold, Betty and Barbara, of Kingston, N. Y., spent their vacation with their cousin, Mrs. Myrtle Werkheiser, of North Fifth St. They also visited other relatives in the Stroudsburgs.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Kester, and son, Richard, of Los Angeles, Cal., have been visiting Mr. Kester's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Kester, Ridgeway St., East Stroudsburg.

Today marks the 51st birthday of Vernon Heller, of Stoflet St., and his twin sister, Mrs. Verna Brink, of Easton. The Hellers have three children and the Brinks have five.

Mr. and Mrs. James Kester, of Ridgeway St., are spending their vacation at Seaside Heights, N. J.

Farewell Party Is Given For John Lesoine

A farewell party in honor of John (Bud) Lesoine, who is soon to enter the armed services, was given by his employer, R. W. Irwin of Penn-Dell Dairy, at the Old Heidelberg, Swiftwater on Wednesday night.

John Lesoine, who is scheduled to leave for service on July 16, was presented with a wrist watch from his fellow-employees at Penn-Dell Dairy.

Baby Shower Is Held For Mrs. Ruth Lewis

Canadensis—Mrs. Ruth Lewis was the guest of honor at a baby shower held Wednesday night.

Mrs. Ben Lockert, Mrs. Janet Brush and Mrs. Elsie Guida were hostesses. They had arranged a bathhouse, decorated with pink, blue and white streamers, to hold the gifts.

Guests included Mrs. Ruth Lewis, Mrs. Ann Serfass, Mrs. Elmer Daniels, Mrs. Andrew Lewis, Mrs. John Kerz, Mrs. Betty Britton, Mrs. Peggy Vanderveer, Mrs. Molly Zink and Mrs. Kermit Koch.

Herman Barlieb Is Honored At Birthday Party

Kunkletown—A surprise dinner was given in honor of Herman Barlieb on Monday night at his home in celebration of his birthday. A large decorated cake was part of the table decorations. He received many gifts.

Those present to help him celebrate included Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Barlieb, Orison Barlieb, Mrs. Anna Zettlemoyer and son, Donald, Mr. and Mrs. Silas Smith and son, Roger, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin H. Careers And Marriage Work Fine For The 'MacRaymonds'

"The MacRaymonds"—Gene Raymond and Jeanette MacDonald—have been happily married for fourteen and a half years, all the while pursuing their separate and brilliant careers.

How have they managed to accomplish this feat? Mr. Raymond, who will be co-starred with Geraldine Brooks in "The Petrified Forest" at the Pocono Playhouse, Mountainhome, Pa., the week of July 21, came forward with the explanation today.

"We keep our professional careers apart from our life as a married couple," he said. "We never interfere with each other's business, nor do we permit our work to impinge upon our home activities."

Several times in the course of their married life they have appeared together on stage and screen. Just recently, they were on the Ken Murray and Ed Sullivan TV shows, when Gene introduced two of his own songs. In 1950 and '51 they toured in Molner's comedy, "The Guardsman," and one of their pictures together, "Smilin' Through," was a smash hit for both performers.

Also, Miss MacDonald introduced in concert two compositions which Gene wrote especially for her—"Release" and "Let Me Always Sing."

Throughout all these varied activities, they have managed to maintain a serenity which is the envy of many Broadway and Hollywood couples and when a slight contretemps does arise, as one did recently—well, they settle the difficulty amicably.

Mr. Raymond grinned as he related the incident. "I saw a kinescope of our television appearance on the Ed Sullivan show the other day," he said, "and discovered that in one

Garden Club Hears Talk By Mrs. Hutton

Tannersville—The Pocono Garden Club met at the firehouse on Tuesday, July 8 with Mrs. Millard Rice presiding. She opened the meeting with the reading of a poem, "Fairer Rose." After reading of minutes and hearing treasurer's report, Mrs. Rice reminded members to notify the sick committee members in their respective sections of any member's illness.

Since the judges of exhibits were not present, Mrs. Paul Hein, Mrs. Daisy Allegar and Mrs. Beatrice DeHaven were appointed to serve. The exhibits were "patriotic arrangements."

Mrs. Marjorie Canfield gave a review of the picnic at Buck Hill Falls and presented the prizes for the hats which won awards at that affair; Mrs. Spring, the most original; Mrs. Nettie Dunbar, the funniest; and Mrs. Millard Rice, the prettiest.

Mrs. John Smith, chairman of the flower show, distributed the schedule of exhibits and explained the various classes in detail. She asked anyone who can help get the hall ready to report on the morning of Tuesday, August 12. The show is set for August 13 and 14. Several members present offered to help.

Mr. and Mrs. Mathiasen made a donation of $3 to the fund being accumulated for tuning the piano. Mrs. Mathiasen asked members to contribute clippings for the scrap book, especially any articles on activities of the club during Mrs. Hazel Lambert's and Mrs. Katherine McDade's terms of office.

There were 51 members and guests present.

The main talk given by Mrs. Ann Hawks Hutton on the topic was "Where Washington Crossed." She mentioned in the course of her talk that the original painting of that historical event hangs in the Methodist Church in the Washington Crossing Park.

Those who desire schedules of the Flower Show may obtain them from the secretary, Mrs. Elsie Beseker, or Mrs. Rice.

Refreshments of cookies and punch, in charge of Mrs. Ruth Howell, were enjoyed.

Republican Women To Reverse Trip Of 50 Democrats Made From Resaca 100 Years Ago

When the three Republican Women's Councils of Monroe County gather at Resaca Falls for a picnic meeting to hear County Chairman E. K. Williams give a first hand account of the Republican Convention, they will be reversing the political trend of just 100 years ago. It was in November 1862 that two great hark wagons, linked together and drawn by 40 yoke of oxen brought 50 voters down from the teeming village of Resaca to vote in the election, held at what is now Regina Hotel at Coolbaugh.

All of them voted the Democratic ticket for Pierce and King, who not only carried Pennsylvania but also the nation, against Winfield Scott, a Whig; John P. Hale, Free Soil Democrat, and John Broom, native American.

They came riding down the rough roads from Resaca with Samuel Gunsauls on a fine gray mare at their head, and were greeted at the polling place with cheers.

Mustering 50 voters of any persuasion at Resaca today (not counting the coming picnic) would be an impossible task for the once thriving and noisy tannery village has long since been claimed by the wilderness it once conquered.

It was in 1847 that the firm of Miller and Mackey purchased the 2,000 heavily timbered acres in Middle Smithfield Township, then a wilderness. Even then, though, the waterfalls plunged between steep banks into a dark ravine which recalled to one of the new owners, Mackey, the ravine where the battle of Resaca de la Palma was fought on May 9, 1846. It was one of the early battles of the Mexican War and a great victory for the Americans.

Thus he named the site of the new tannery "Resaca" and around the waterfalls the sound of the axe re-echoed from the ravine, and the buzz of the sawmill drove the deer and game to the barrens above.

As the tannery began operation, new men were drawn into the locality until there were 50 employed at the tannery itself, not counting the many men in the woods, felling trees, peeling the bark for the tannery, and leaving the trunks to rot in the woods or hauling them to the Delaware to be made into rafts to float down to Trenton or Philadelphia.

Nearest market for the finished hides was Port Jervis, and John Frutcher drove the mule team loaded with leather there, and returned with hides, a three-day trip in those times.

A veritable village grew up in the wilderness, with a store, a blacksmith shop, wheelwright shop, homes and boarding houses for the workers and big homes for Miller and Mackey. Fields were cleared to protect the buildings from forest fires, and a fine meadow was opened.

The opening of the D. L. & W. railroad increased the market for the tannery which prospered un-

Bridal Shower Is Held For Mrs. MacDonough

Annalee Bittner MacDonough, whose marriage to Richard MacDonough, of Reading, was announced two weeks ago, was the guest of honor at a bridal shower last night given by Miss Jane Ifft and Miss Bonnie Arnold at the Arnold home on Broad St., South Stroudsburg.

It was a dinner party, with each place marked by a place card carrying a high school snapshot of the guests who were classmates at Stroudsburg High School.

The gifts had been arranged by the fireplace where a sprinkling can rained down yellow and green streamers.

Guests included Beverly Scheller, Carolyn Brown, Janet Miller, June Davies, Joan Huffman, Joan Stoflet, Joan Toms, Betty Ann Hurtz, Annalee MacDonough, and the hostesses.

Invited but unable to attend were Alma Hogrelus, Ann Fleming, Eva Hess, Carol Albert, Sue Gordon and Nancy Peters.

Fire Co. Aux. Planning For July Carnival

Tannersville—The Ladies Auxiliary of the Pocono Township Vol. Fire Co. met on Thursday night, July 3, with Mrs. Frances Beseker presiding. Further details for the Carnival booths to be conducted by members July 14 to 19 were worked out. Donations may still be made by members or anyone interested for the Grab Bag for children with 10c articles, and for the adults the White Elephant articles of 25c value. They may be handed in the first night of the carnival, but preferably before then. Any member will collect the articles if requested.

The organization purchased a sweater made by Mrs. Arthur Raish, especially designed for teen-agers, with Indian motifs, which will be sold. Mrs. Raish donated a baby crocheted set which is on display in Metzgar's Market and which will also be sold at the carnival.

Mrs. Ruth Howell and Mrs. Cora Shook were the hostesses for this meeting. Various sections of the Township will sponsor baked goods and fancy work tables each night of the carnival.

Wyckoff customers would probably never guess it, but the dignified Miss Rusk who heads our sportswear department so efficiently, is actually pretty much of a clown behind the scenes. Yesterday, as a matter of fact, she was practically doing cartwheels in her excitement over the special purchase raincoats that go on sale this morning on our second floor at $14.95.

"Values to $35," Carrie thrilled, striking one of her Grande Dame poses. "Think of it, dahling . . . just THINK of it!"

I was thinking of it. Carrie had poked a copy of today's ad under my nose, and I was recognizing in the illustration the exact coat for which I paid $25 a few weeks back.

"You mean THIS is selling for $14.95 now?" I bellowed.

"That's right," Carrie grinned. "And we have these too." She flipped through a handsomely illustrated book. "This one, for instance." She pointed to a beautiful style labeled "The Sweep Coat," that looked as aloof and unconcerned about a few raindrops, as did the model who, with head held high, was definitely "Somewhere Over the Rainbow" in a "Seventh Heaven" all her own.

"Mmmmm, I approved. 'That's stunning. But what's a 'sweep coat'?"

"It's a duster," Carrie answered. For a moment I eyed her doubtfully, thinking the pun-gent Carrie was trying to be punny.

"Honest," she said, reading my thoughts. "And it's just as smart and comfortable as the duster you lounge around in at night after work. We have several styles, and they're all lovely. So are the fabrics." Turning a few more pages, Carrie propped the book against my typewriter. "Look at this one. It's a modified pyramid with bathing sleeves. But feel that sample! It's 20 per cent wool, 80 per cent rayon, and fully lined, with jockey cap to match."

Other styles were in corduroy, Zephyr, acetate and rayon taffeta, and a variety of colors including pin-point patterns.

"They're all occasion coats, naturally," Carrie explained, "made by one of the leading manufacturers of rainwear in the country. Everyone will recognize the label. But don't mention it. You see, this is a SPECIAL purchase. You do understand . . . don't you, darling?"

Oh, but of course! I understand $10.05 worth, that these coats are bargains . . . just as Carrie says. And from personal experience, I know that with a smart wet-weather coat in closet, no woman EVER gets the blues when it rains!

Rotarians See Movies From Waring Shows

Kinescope pictures of typical Waring television shows were shown to members of the Stroudsburg Rotary Club yesterday by Ennis Davis, director of education for Waring Enterprises, Inc.

Over and above an exceptional entertainment angle, the pictures demonstrated the remarkable versatility of the entire Waring organization.

Swift changes in pattern demonstrated that the members of the Waring organization must be prepared to do anything at a moment's notice, and actually do it.

Mr. Davis emphasized that all of the performers are music conservatory graduates, with the finest in basic music training.

Announcement was made by Walter Schlough, chairman of Monroe County Chapter for Infantile Paralysis, that an organization meeting of the chapter will be held at the YMCA on Monday, July 21 at 8 p. m. Since Rotary has sponsored this group, Mr. Schlough said the club should display interest by attending the meeting.

Jess Haynes, president, had Walter S. Peeney, past district governor, conduct a brief ceremony honoring Gerald M. Anderson, immediate past president.

Mr. Peeney noted that Mr. Anderson had pledged a specific endeavor in behalf of youth of the community. That promise has been fully fulfilled with the development of the Little League program, Mr. Peeney observed.

The club, during Mr. Anderson's regime, has had its greatest growth in history, the past district governor announced.

Mr. Anderson was presented with a brochure containing all copies of the Monroty, official club paper and with a past president's pin.

Mr. Anderson noted that anything he had achieved was done with the full support and participation of the membership.

Brookdale Mill Leading Glass Fabric Producer

The forty-third of a series of articles dealing with industrial operations in Monroe County is presented today by The Daily Record. Aim of the series is to acquaint all citizens with what is produced here, how it is made, the type of people and skills engaged in such production and the economic impact of each industry on this region.

By James E. Gaffney

A major contribution to the defense effort is being made by Brookdale Mill, Inc., in Stroudsburg, one of the nation's primary producers of glass fabrics.

For the past few years Brookdale's weaving has been concentrated in the new and intriguing glass fabric field. Glass cloth is produced from yarns made solely of minute filaments of glass thinner than a human hair. These yarns, when woven into fabric forms, have exceptionally high strength characteristics, are completely fire-proof and have outstanding properties for electrical and plastics applications.

At the present time glass fabrics being produced at Brookdale are being used for fuel cell liners in the B-47 bombers; for high strength electrical tape used in wrapping coils in jet engines; for permanent aerial mappings; for the manufacture of housings in which radar equipment is installed and many similar vital defense uses.

Brookdale Mill, Inc. began business in 1944 at its old plant on Henry St., East Stroudsburg. It is now located at Third St. and Kraemer Ave. in Stroudsburg.

Under the supervision of Russell Fellman, the plant now employs slightly fewer than 100 persons and operates on a three-shift five-day week. Brookdale's sales of glass fabrics are handled through an affiliated company, St. George Textile Corp., which has its main offices in New York City and a nationwide industrial sales organization.

Brookdale is particularly recognized throughout the country for its specialty production of glass fabric used for aerial mappings and for permanent templates for the aircraft industry.

This application requires a glass cloth of the highest quality and it is a tribute to the skill and care of Brookdale's production personnel that major aircraft companies and government agencies specify Brookdale's fabric for this use above that of any other glass weaving mill in the country.

While a very large percentage of Brookdale's production is for eventual government's defense use, most of its actual orders are on a sub-contract basis for companies which are building aircraft, tanks, guided missiles and other defense equipment for the Armed Forces.

The president of Brookdale Mill, Inc., is Felix Pfeffer and Fellman is in full charge of operations as plant superintendent.

Mrs. Betty Price handles administrative work at the plant and Pat Smickley is principal assistant to Fellman.

At present, Brookdale has a floor space of approximately 20,300 square feet. It is hoped that as requirements for glass fabric continue to expand, Brookdale's operations will grow further in size.

Life of Riley

By JIM RILEY
Sports Editor

Billy Martin came to the Pocono Mountains just the other day because he read about Mount Airy Lodge in an advertisement. The area may now receive some publicity from Martin, who returned to the New York Yankees lineup last night and blasted a home run in celebration of the event. Anyone who follows the Yankees knows that Billy couldn't hit many more trippers—could he that good Pocono Mountains air. Mickey Mantle, who was with Martin at Mount Airy Lodge, yesterday was named as the best young player in the American League by Marty Marion, manager of the St. Louis Browns.

Speaking of major leaguers in our area, it is only proper to point out that Elmer Valo, who had such a great night for the A's last night against the Cleveland Indians, visited "Bud" Seitz at Saylor's Lake on Wednesday. Seitz, an umpire in the Blue Mountain Association, played a lot of ball with Valo in Palmerton, in the late 1930s. Seitz, by the way, reportedly turned down a bid to umpire in the Western Association last Wednesday, due to his interests at Saylor's Lake. Valo is a very popular figure in this area, having officiated many basketball games here and spoke at several meetings in our back yard.

Pocono A. C. played its best baseball of the season in defeating Portland last Sunday, but the same club came up with by far its poorest brand of play at East Bangor yesterday. The charges of Manager John Schoonover committed seven errors in the field and deprived pitcher Alden "Red" Fetherman of a possible victory, although the former Stroudsburg High athletic star limited the winning club to three hits. Pocono A. C. also stranded 14 runners on the base paths, as compared to seven for the winning East Bangor contingent.

Fetherman has now allowed only one earned run in 29 innings, but has yet to gain a victory in four trips to the mound. "Red" was the victim of eight unearned runs yesterday, as his supporting cast had more trouble fielding the ball than a trembling cook with a hot potato. The loss made the A. C. fourth place standing very shaky at the present time, as the same East Bangor club is only one-half game out of the first division, although currently listed as the number five club in the standings.

Although baseball is now in the home stretch, yesterday was the first time this season that Pocono A. C. played at East Bangor due to the early season actions of the weatherman. Pocono A. C. hasn't played Johnsonville at all as yet, for the same reason. However, Pocono A. C. and Johnsonville clash twice next week, once at Portland and another time at Gordon Giffels field. Baseball throughout the county is now in the second half, although it doesn't seem possible.

Bob Seick's safe bunt in the third inning of yesterday's game at East Bangor was one of the best that this writer ever witnessed. It rolled right down the first base line, but refused to roll foul, as the Pocono A. C. left fielder easily beat the play at first. Ed Christoff, catcher for the Alkenton Cardinals, is again ready for action, after being on the sidelines with a broken thumb. The thumb was broken in two places. Christoff received his start in pro baseball with Nazareth, of the North Atlantic League.

Pocono A. C. Errors Give East Bangor Victory, 8-3

Game Features Total Of Eleven Boots

East Bangor — Pocono A. C. kicked itself to the brink of the second division in the Blue Mountain League yesterday, as the charges of Manager John Schoonover committed seven errors while bowing to East Bangor, 8-3, here on the winning club's home field. The final inning was played in darkness before a small crowd.

Alden "Red" Fetherman pitched a three-hitter at the East Bangor contingent, but his supporting cast was unable to handle seven routine plays and the winning club scored a total of eight unearned runs, as Pocono A. C. slipped to within half a game of fifth place, currently occupied by the same East Bangor club.

Fetherman gave up a hit in the first frame and two in the seventh, but East Bangor built its winning margin on errors alone.

The home club scored twice in the first on an error, a walk, a double and a double steal.

Even Count
Pocono A. C. came back to even the count on singletons in the second and third rounds, the first run of which was also setup on a double error by the East Bangor infield. East Bangor committed four errors in the field during the ball game.

East Bangor went out in front to stay with a single run in the fourth, and then added one more counter in the fifth and put the game on ice with four runs in the sixth frame, the final inning in which the home team batted.

Two errors, two walks and a pair of doubles enabled East Bangor to score its fourth sixth inning runs.

Pocono A. C. rallied for one marker in the seventh, but the late spurt fell far short of its mark.

The Schoonovermen will have to win on Sunday, when they play at Tatamy, if they hope to pass the weekend safely in the first division.

Hona Massey To Star At Playhouse

Mountainhome — Hona Massey, glamorous screen star, will be the next attraction at Pocono Playhouse in one of the sprightliest comedies of the season, "Angels in Paris," scheduled to open next Monday night.

The play is one of those larks of giddy whimsical proportions that bubbles merrily along splashing with laughter and provides Miss Massey with a most fitting vehicle for her well known provocative mannerisms and lilting singing voice. The story is laid in Paris in the grand salon of an international hostess and runs the gamut of exciting intrigue, suspense and hilarity with a surprise ending.

Miss Massey has long been the personification of charm and glamour in motion pictures. An international beauty, born in Hungary, she was with the Viennese Opera Co. when discovered by Hollywood talent scouts. She proved to be a sensation in her first picture "Balalaika" and later appeared in "Rosalie," "New Wine," "International Lady" and other popular motion pictures. She interrupted her motion picture career to appear on Broadway in the "Ziegfeld Follies" and last summer she made her first appearance in summer stock in "Tonight or Never." Television fans have seen her on "Studio One," "Circle Theatre" and other top network shows.

Kirk Alyn whose most recent TV appearance has been in the role of "Superman" will have the leading male role with Miss Massey. He had appeared in ten Broadway shows, both musical and dramatic, including the play "Pie in the Sky," with Oscar Shaw, Enid Markey and Luella Gear. He has appeared in more than forty motion pictures, including, "My Sister Eileen," "A Watch for Joe" with Edward Arnold and in the Columbia serial-starring "Black Hawk." Among others in the supporting cast of "Angels in Paris" are: Rachel Taylor, Marie Kenny, Jean Stapleton and Tony Dowling.

The play will continue through Saturday night, July 19 with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday at 2:40. Reservations for tickets may be made by calling Cresco 8401-3451.

Mrs. Anna Sharbaugh and Mrs. Marie Fairbanks of Trenton, N. J., spent the weekend here at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Paul.

Mrs. Cora Oenland and Harry Allen of Philadelphia, motored here Friday where they spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rustine.

George Butz of Fort Jackson, South Carolina enjoyed a three day furlough here with his father, Steward Butz, Mrs. Steward Williams and children, Nancy and Claud of Riverdale, N. J., also were here over the weekend at the Butz home.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Leauber and sons, Lester and Lin and Mr. and Mrs. Emory Anglemire motored to Long Island Thursday night where they spent the three day holiday with Mr. and Mrs. John Reimel.

The Lutheran Council met Friday night at the home of Herman Paul with the new Pastor, Rev. Edward Horn, present. Business matters were considered and bills paid. The following were present: Rev. Horn, Morgan Butz, Clair Wallingford, Charlie Andrew, Glenn Wallingford, Roy Paul and the host Mr. Paul. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Paul, assisted by her daughter, Marie.

Miss Barbara Butz accompanied her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Row of Swiftwater, to Montclair, N. J. over the weekend. They visited Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kilroy. They arrived home Sunday night and were entertained at lunch by Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Butz.

Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Miller of Philadelphia, are spending a few days here with relatives.

Church services were held Sunday morning when the Rev. Edward T. Horn was installed by the Rev. Whetstone of Allentown. The church was filled to capacity. The joint choir of the three churches was heard in two anthems, "One Prayer, One Song" and "Jesus is Leading Me." Margaret Butz and Glenn Wallingford were soloists. Bouquets and baskets of regale lilies, roses and delphiniums decorated the church with regale lilies on the altar as the predominating flower. Holy Communion will be celebrated Sunday morning at 10:30.

Mrs. Roy Paul attended the funeral of a cousin, Earl Cyphers at Bethlehem Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Russell Frable and Miss Ada Frable motored to Parryville Monday where they picked cherries.
